Raphael Wyss

About

Raphael Wyss' practice focuses on all areas of administrative law, general public law, and regulatory matters as well as related commercial issues. He has broad experience with businesses operating in regulated industries, as he advises and represents clients in various sectors, such as life sciences, foodstuff, banking and insurance, telecommunications, higher education, energy, transportation, and infrastructure.

In particular, Raphael Wyss has a proven track record in litigating complex administrative and general public law matters before the competent authorities, appellate bodies, and courts at both federal and cantonal level in a wide range of specialized fields of federal and cantonal administrative law. In addition, he has extensive experience in all regulatory and commercial matters concerning pharmaceuticals and medical devices (such as manufacturing, authorization, marketing & distribution, and research & development), including reimbursement and other health insurance issues. Furthermore, he regularly prepares expert opinions on various administrative and public law matters.

The Legal500 recognizes him as a rising star in public law and as a key lawyer in Bär & Karrer's life sciences team.
